RECOMMENDATION

Contracts and Specifications staff has evaluated the subject project and recommends No Measure for Community Small Business Enterprise (CSBE) Subcontractor participation, based on the lack of available construction trade areas to be subcontracted. The total estimated cost is $583,073.84. The Public Works Department (PWD) staff has checked the availability of CSBE Subcontractors and has attached the PWD Project Measure Analysis and Recommendation findings along with other supporting documents for consideration. PWD staff met with the Department of Small Business Development's (SBD) Construction Manager in an effort to seek out additional opportunities for CSBEs. The Community Workforce Program (CWP) is applicable to this project. PWD received a response from the Geocode System which determined that several work locations are in a Designated Target Area (DTA).

BACKGROUND

Speed management is a significant challenge for most communities in the United States. This is particularly true for small, rural communities where the main roadway through the town serves a dual role. Outside the town, the roadway provides high-speed travel over long distances; within the built-up area, however, the same roadway accommodates local access, pedestrians of all ages, on-street parking, bicycles, and the many other features unique to the character of a community or larger city. This convergence of roadway purposes presents both an enforcement challenge for the community and a potential safety problem for the public.

Addressing the issue through law enforcement alone often leads to temporary compliance at a significant cost. A more permanent way to reinforce the need to reduce speed is to change the look and feel of the road by installing traffic calming treatments that communicate to drivers that the function of the roadway is changing. Traffic calming has been evaluated and used extensively within low-speed urban areas in the United States but less so in rural areas where driver expectations and traffic characteristics are different.
